

Our projects not only stand up, they stand out

At Hanson, our experienced structural engineers can provide the support your project requires, helping you balance a combination of function, economy, aesthetics and maintenance into your design. As an award-winning design firm, we regard structural engineering as more than an application of technology. We work with you to achieve your unique goals.

From buildings and bridges to communication towers and power plants, we'll leverage our knowledge and experience for your project.

Choose Hanson for your structural engineering and design needs.

Since our company's inception in 1954, Hanson has offered structural engineering services. Our projects can be seen throughout the U.S. and around the world, helping both public- and private-sector organizations meet their needs.
